Each consultant offers additional further expertise in specific sub-specialist areas of gastroenterology, this includes the most up to date techniques in medical and endoscopic treatments and nutritional management.

Disorders treated include:

- Rectal Bleeding
- Abdominal Pain
- Reflux
- Altered Bowel Habit
- Iron Deficiency Anaemia
- Weight Loss

Techniques include:

- Gastroscopy
- Colonoscopy
- ERCP
- Capsule Endoscopy
- Oesophageal Motility Testing
- Dietetic and Nutrition Service

What is our philosophy of care?

- We maintain the highest possible medical standards
- Our individual private practice reflects personal clinical expertise
- We aim for an individualised patient centred approach

Where do we work?

Our NHS work is based within Portsmouth Hospitals Trusts, one of the largest in the UK. We treat patients from Hampshire and West Sussex at a number of major and local centres including Queen Alexandra Hospital, Portsmouth, the Royal Haslar Hospital, Gosport, Gosport War Memorial Hospital and Petersfield Hospital. Our private practice is based at BUPA Hospital Portsmouth in Havant.

Within our roles we work closely with both GPs in the community and surgical and oncology specialists.

What is our approach to patient safety and professional standards of care?

We practice an open and critical approach to all aspects of medical care including patient outcome and complications of treatment, with open and regular review.

Members of the team are routinely and regularly involved in audits of their clinical care, continuing medical education and reviews of changing national and international practice. This maintains both the highest standards of clinical medicine and most up-to date methods of management.

We are happy to discuss these issues with patients and GPs directly on request.

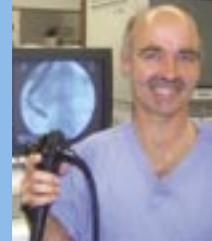

Dr Pradeep Bhandari

Pradeep trained in gastroenterology at various hospitals across Wessex, and in advanced endoscopic techniques for screening and treatment of gastrointestinal cancers at the National Cancer Centre in Tokyo. He has now established these practices in Portsmouth. Pradeep has considerable experience in the management of dyspepsia, irritable and inflammatory bowel diseases and gastrointestinal cancers.

Dr Richard Ellis

Richard has a broad area of expertise; particular interests are endoscopy, irritable bowel syndrome, gastrointestinal cancer, inflammatory bowel disease and viral hepatitis. He qualified at Charing Cross & Westminster Medical School and trained in gastroenterology at St Thomas' Hospital, Chelsea & Westminster and St.Mary's Hospital before moving to the south coast.

Dr Patrick Goggin

Pat went to Oxford University Medical School and trained at the John Radcliffe Hospital in Oxford, Wexham Park, Bart's, St George's, St Hellier's, Royal Hampshire County, and Southampton General Hospital. He has gained a great deal of experience in all aspects of gastroenterology, particularly disorders of the oesophagus, stomach and bowel, and diagnostic and therapeutic endoscopy.

Dr Amanda Quine

Amanda is a general gastroenterologist with interests in oesophageal motility disorders, irritable bowel syndrome and investigation of small bowel disease using capsule endoscopy. Amanda qualified at St Bartholomew's Hospital and trained at hospitals in and around London before moving down to the south coast.

Dr Tim Trebble

Tim qualified from King's College Hospital, London and trained in gastroenterology across Wessex and at the Institute of Human Nutrition, Southampton. He specialises in irritable bowel syndrome, inflammatory bowel disease, endoscopy, intestinal failure and nutrition. He advises on management of complex gastrointestinal disorders at Portsmouth.

Jilla Ferguson – Registered Dietitian

Jilla is a senior community dietitian for Portsmouth Hospitals Trust having qualified from the University of Surrey. She has considerable experience in general dietetics with special interests in upper and lower GI surgery, oncology and gastroenterology.
